

TORNADO MADE A WIDE SWEEP

First Reported Near Toledo And Then Swings Down Through Indiana And Tennessee.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE REPORTED

Storm Is Raging South of Rockford This Afternoon-- Telegraph Wires Are All In Trouble-- General Storm News.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Toledo, Ohio, April 7.—Without any apparent warning, one of the most severe hurricanes followed by a severe rain swept over the city this morning doing thousands of dollars' worth of damage to buildings in course of construction.

Like a Tornado.

The wind blew with such velocity for a few minutes that it approached a tornado in violence although the dark clouds usually seen with such a storm were absent. Hundreds of men have been forced to suspend work and the damage is very great in many sections of the city.

On the Washash.

Washash, Ind., April 7.—Last evening's tornado has left in its wake dozens of demolished houses and a score of people in the city are reported more or less severely injured. The storm was furious while it lasted and was followed by a heavy downpour of rain.

Breaks Connections.

Owing to a break in the electric service the city was in darkness all night, adding to the horror of the storm. All telephones and telegraph wires are down and hundreds of dollars' worth of damage has been done to the local electric service.

In Peru, Indiana.

Peru, Ind., April 7.—The tornado did considerable damage here and the total amount will reach many thousands of dollars. Thus far no one is known to have been killed although several cases of minor accidents have been reported.

Factories Destroyed.

Four factories were destroyed and several school buildings more or less demolished. Small structures suffered the most and many were completely destroyed by the fury of the wind. Heavy rain followed the wind, drenching everything.

Six Are Killed.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—Six persons are known to have been killed and fifteen injured in the storm which swept over the city and surrounding country with exceptional fury destroying much property and growing crops.

Into Mississippi.

The fury of the storm was felt in upper Mississippi and western Tennessee and thousands of dollars' worth of small early crops are entirely destroyed as well as houses and barns blown down and totally destroyed.

South of Rockford.

Rockford, Ill., April 7.—Commencement south and east of the city is apparently shut off this afternoon by the fury of a storm that has incapacitated the telegraph and telephone wires. It is thought that considerable damage has been done to the region immediately adjacent to the city.

At Oshkosh.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 7.—The wind is blowing a gale here today and as a result the ice in Lake Winnebago has broken up and is piling up on the east shore of the lake, causing considerable damage to property here.

Drawing Out Ice.

The ice in Lake Michigan is being sent down the river in high flows and it is feared that an ice jam will take place at the Algoma street bridge unless the wind moderates within the next 24 hours.

The Mere Husband—Dear love, don't think of buying anything! The new increased tariff is on all of your articles of adornment.

The Wife—If you think that I am going to let a thing like the tariff interfere with my dressing, you are mistaken. Earn more money is my suggestion to you.

NEGRO TO DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

James Smith Will Execute Murder of G. A. R. Veteran at Richmond, Va., Tomorrow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Richmond, Va., April 7.—The execution of James Smith, colored, which is set to take place in the penitentiary here tomorrow, will add another to the long list of negroes who have been put to death in the electric chair since electricity was introduced into the state. The convicted murderer was sentenced to death by the murder of James Flynn, a Grand Army veteran, in this city last January.

Robbery was the motive for the crime. Flynn had been in Richmond for some time, doing odd jobs as a gardener. He was seen the day before the murder, and was in company with Smith and another negro. The crime was committed on the outskirts of the city about midnight, the man being beaten into insensibility and left for dead. Some passers-by found the old man and rushed him to the hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness.

Smith pointed to Smith, who had a bad reputation. He was arrested and some of the dead man's clothing was found in a house that the negro had occupied the night after the murder. After his arrest the negro confessed to the crime.

F. MARION CRAWFORD IS CRITICALLY ILL

American Admirers of the Novelist Are Greatly Concerned Over Tidings From Italy.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] New York, April 7.—The many friends of F. Marion Crawford in this city are seriously concerned over the reports from Italy in regard to the present illness of the famous novelist. Mr. Crawford, it is known, has been in poor health for a long time, but not until the past week, when private advisers were received in this city, did his many friends here learn that his condition is regarded as critical.

Mr. Crawford is now in his fifty-fifth year—comparatively young for one who has written nearly two-score books and novels, all of them interesting, many of them excellent, and several of them among the most popular and saleable of the day. He was born at Bagal di Lucca, near Florence, Italy. His father was Thomas Crawford, the distinguished American sculptor, and his mother was Louisa Ward, a sister of Julia Ward Howe and the daughter of a wealthy New York banker.

The father of Marion Crawford died when the latter was but 3 years old. Possessed of ample means, the mother of the future novelist gave her son all of the advantage of an excellent education. Although he had been brought to America when a small lad, he was taken back to Italy and it was in Italy that his youth was spent. Before he was ten years old he could speak several languages.

At twelve years of age Marion Crawford was brought to America again and became a student at a preparatory school in New Hampshire. It was the original plan to send him to Harvard, but this plan was abandoned and in 1879 he went to England and entered Cambridge University. In 1879 he went to Germany, where he spent two years, first at Karlsruhe and then at the university of Heidelberg. The next two years he spent in Italy again.

In 1878, imbued with the idea of learning Sanskrit and becoming a professor in some European university, Mr. Crawford set out for India, where he remained a year and underwent at the same time the hardest and some of the most interesting experiences of his entire career. Being in need of funds, he accepted a position on a newspaper in Bombay, but soon feeling that Indian journalism had no future for him he wisely gave it up and returned to Italy.

Mr. Crawford's family at this time had lost much of their wealth and when the future novelist returned to Italy he found himself without funds. In this dilemma he took passage on a tramp steamer bound for New York. Arrived in this city in the spring of 1881, he resorted to his literary acumen, becoming a professor of Sanskrit, though he still harbored thoughts of becoming a professor of Sanskrit. With that end in view he attended a course in Sanskrit at Harvard, and in the meantime he supported himself by contributions to the newspapers and magazines.

In 1882 Mr. Crawford completed his first story, "Mr. Isaacs," and through the influence of his uncle, a wealthy New York banker, he found a publisher for the book. "Mr. Isaacs" was an instant success. It proved to be equally popular in England and America and forestalled the character of Mr. Crawford's subsequent successes. The next year he published "A Roman Singer," which also proved successful. Thus, before he was thirty years old, Mr. Crawford had become one of the most popular writers of the day.

Father Abused Son: Cries of murder from the woman of the household brought neighbors running to George Adams' domicile in the Grubb district this morning. Adams, 57, is alleged to have had his crippled son over a banister and to have been choking him, but he had disappeared when the outsiders got there.

NEWEST MECCA FOR DIVORCE-SEEKERS

Reno, Nevada, Is Welcoming a Steady Influx of Maimed Husbands and Wives.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Reno, Nev., April 7.—Reno promises to become the mecca for society men and women seeking release from galling marital bonds. For several months past there has been a steady influx of maimed husbands and wives and every day is adding one or more new arrivals to the colony. Among those already here are a number of persons prominent in society in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other Eastern cities.

St. Louis, Mo., D. recently was divorced from the divorce industry by the people of the state, who voted that they had suffered enough from unpleasant notoriety. For a few days restless members of fashionable society were in a quandary, but their legal advisers notified them that Nevada's laws were the least ever framed. Promptly Reno became the mecca of those having soulmates, and chronic cases of "incompatibility of temperament."

Among those who have recently joined the local divorce colony are several women well known in New York society. Mrs. Nathan L. Deland, formerly the beautiful Letty Lee Sands, will probably carry off the palm for the first divorce obtained by a member of the New York smart set. She has now been a resident of Nevada for more than six months and in the early part of this month she filed her suit for absolute divorce.

LEGENDARY TREE NOT SYMPATHETIC

Phenomenon Expected on Death of the Last of the St. Lawrence in Ireland Failed to Materialize.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, April 7.—When the news of the death of the Earl of Howth, last of his race, reached the pretty resort beside Dublin Bay from which the family took its title, great curiosity was shown as to whether the "tree of posterity" would fall.

The tradition ran that when the last of the St. Lawrence, who for seven centuries had held in unbroken line a place in the peerage of Ireland, died, the tree would fall. The last of the St. Lawrence has now gone, but the tree still stands.

The late Earl must have been a better in the tradition, as, some years ago, seeing the decaying condition of the tree, he had the trunk bound by iron bands and supported by several stout planks.

One of the causes for the advance was reported that Europe would require fifty million bushels of wheat from America within the next four months.

William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army, who was born April 10, 1829. One of the features of the celebration will be a monster demonstration in the Crystal Palace, in which 25,000 or more members of the organization will participate. Despite his years Gen. Booth is still active in the cause which he has made his life work. Following his return from a trip to South Africa he has visited Russia during the present month in an effort to induce the Emperor to permit the Salvation Army to extend its organization and operations to include that country.

GREAT REVIVAL ON IN ST. PAUL

"GIPSY" SMITH IS WINNING MANY CONVERTS. HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY

And a Detail of Police Is Necessary to Close Doors of Auditorium Where Meetings Are Held.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] St. Paul, Minn., April 7.—Eighty thousand people, or the equivalent of one-third of the entire population of St. Paul, have heard Gypsy Smith, the revivalist from London, within a week. Scenes well-nigh unbelievable have occurred at almost every meeting, culminating Sunday night when the huge auditorium, seating 10,000 people, was filled in less than fifteen minutes, and the police were called out to close the doors and prevent over-crowding.

Seats and even standing room have been at a premium for several days. People attending the meetings have little chance of getting in now unless they join the lines before the many entrances to the auditorium building, and enter with the first rush. The building fills in incredible time and a detail of police then closes the doors. Hundreds and thousands have been turned away from the meetings because even the enormous capacity of the big municipal building is insufficient and overflow meetings are being held at a dozen different churches.

The visitor's methods are not especially sensational. He has spoken bluntly and from the shoulder at all his meetings and has impartially dealt condemnation to sinners without and hypocrites within the church. His latest assault is upon women of the church who from with polite horror on the unfortunate of their kind, and cloak themselves with pious respectability and aloofness in the presence of the unfortunate of the underworld. To these he delivered this stinging blow:

"Doesn't anybody care? If a woman steps down, you never forgive her. You kick her for falling and wouldn't help her even with a kind word. You wouldn't take her hand; you wouldn't ask her in for a cup of tea. You wouldn't dare acknowledge sin with her. But how about the man who did it? You play cards with him. He calls upon your laughter. You receive him in your home."

"Doesn't anybody care for the woman?" And you—there's no coming back into decent society for you, until you lift that woman and bring her with you."

Thousands have listened to his message, which is vigorous and earnest, and thousands have passed through the heavy curtains, and past the men on guard, into the pentest room to pray and seek relief. And hundreds have found hope there. One of the men who is working among the seekers after the worse for wear and with a quart flask in his pocket. The man is clean and sober. He has braced up. He has a respectable job, and is working now with Gypsy to help others.

St. Paul takes Gypsy Smith seriously. There can be no doubt of that. Hundreds of businessmen even, who have not been inside of a church in years, are frequently in his meetings. He seems to have reached right and low, high and low alike. His meetings are not fancy set, but nothing new will surprise St. Paul. It has been seen from attending religious services. It has seen ten thousand people and to fill the building where the evangelist speaks. It has seen five thousand wait patiently on the streets in the open air for a glimpse of the man who has so stirred up the religious emotions of the city. Nothing new can matter much.

PIONEER BANKS WERE PRIMITIVE

IN THE DAYS OF 1854, FARMERS WERE THE

"LORDS OF CREATION"

Josiah Wright Gives Interesting Reminiscences of Early "Boom" Days of Janesville.

Janesville in 1854 had three banks—the Pioneer State, usually called "Dimick's bank," the Central, "Doe's bank," the Janesville City, or "Hunt's bank." While these several institutions were styled banks, they were what at that time in the east would be classed as brokers. Whether or not I do not remember, but I think not. The bills were a neat ornamental piece of art—steel engraving, and looked as well as any currency. The banking law required a deposit of state bonds with the bank commissioner, on which the auditor would place his signature for ninety per cent of the value of the securities, making them a safe circulating medium.

The bank was not formally organized until Feb. 12, 1855 (although it had been doing business before), with the following stockholders, as follows, viz.: Theodore Perry, New York City, 83 shares, $8,300; Wm. Sanderson, Milwaukee, Wis., 84 shares, $8,400; John W. Johnson, Janesville, 83 shares, $8,300.

With the above securities the circulation was obtained and the bank was known. All that was absolutely needed was an office with the necessary—safe, set of books, and pen and ink. When the writer came, in 1854, Mr. Henry Hunter was the man at the helm. The office was on the corner of the vacant lot owned by Mr. Thompson, Lapin, who when he built, commenced on the corner of the alley on Milwaukee street and built and finished an office, making it possible for the bank to move directly into, before the old office was removed.

Mr. Hunter was an Englishman, I think, although his blarney would sometimes make him appear to be a true son of the "Emerald Isle." The greater proportion of the farmers were Scotch and English. A Scandinavian was not known upon the streets. When they did appear, they were appreciated for their sterling worth, as they have ever since been.

Personally, I was much to do in making friends. Mr. Hunter had in a marked degree those social qualities and the farmers who were the "lords of creation" seemed to like him and largely gave him their business.

For some unaccountable reason Mr. Hunter offered the writer the office of cashier, which was declined. I preferred the freedom of a wholesale business which necessitated my going about the country soliciting trade and making acquaintances. The travel was with a horse or horses. The country was new. The rides were not only exhilarating, but enchanting. After repeated approaches I recommended a young man living in Ulen, N. Y., Mr. Samuel Lightbody, who had means. He came out and accepted the position. Within a short time Mr. Lightbody and the writer bought out Mr. Hunter and became sole owners of the bank. Alternately we would serve as tellers. The bookkeeper was without exception the most accomplished for the position. It has been my privilege to know. His name was James Frazor, son of Mr. Robert Frazor of Milton, a true blue Scotchman. In the first place, during business hours he was silent. He was also correct in figures, a rapid writer, and withal a hand so plain that any child could read it. Very different from the present service, for at least half the departments from outside banks, when listing, one might as well try to interpret a name from an Egyptian obelisk, embellished with winged bulls.

Bankers nowadays would shrink from the work of those times. On the pass-book, as well as all deposits had to be classified—current, exchange, gold and currency, gold a premium, exchange a discount, currency at par.

It was not long before reports would be received rating certain offices at a discount. We were on the eve of the wildest, most frenzied conditions of wildcat circulation ever known. When the work of the day was over and the safe locked we supposed the money was all good. The morning's inspection would find more or less, as reported from Chicago by wire, no worthless up to a small discount.

With all these discouragements the bank was making money. Eastern exchange was from 1 to 2 per cent discount. No one from there brought currency. Often we were obliged to send to New York for it—sent by express. The rate of interest was 10 per cent, but by agreement 12 per cent. Speculators in city lots and farm-lands were busy. Often a sale made on which they would make $1,000. In order to get money to go on their investments they would offer one-half of their profits for money. The value of property rose in a short time from one to five hundred per cent. Everything was simply on a boom.

Mr. A. K. Norris built a large steam sawmill just above the railway cut, where now are the City Ice Co. houses. He bought his pine logs from Wolf river lumbermen and had them put on cars and brought to Chester, where they were dumped into Rock river and rafted, coming through Lakes Huron and Keweenaw to Janesville. It was a strain to sight to see great rafts of logs held by booms in our harbor. Fortunately the fleet was small. Had there been any such number as at present sailing would have been difficult.

Mr. Norris did a thriving business. It was a fine thing for those who were building. In my own case I needed extra long timber when building, so I went and selected the logs, which were sawed as desired. Mr. Norris came from Bangor, Maine. He was a relative of S. H. Rawson, Esq., president of the City Bank of Bangor. His was one of the old safety funds and he wanted circulation. Many will recollect seeing those bills. We borrowed sixty thousand per month and scattered them about. The bills were all ones and twos. In fact, they were the principal currency on the street.

We loaned the directors of the C. & N. W. Ry. for grading from Turner Junction to Belvidere. When completed, Mr. Geo. Smith, a Scotch banker of Chicago, expected a loan on their bonds, after which we could loan them no more money. Mr. Norris' requirements were large and the enterprise a success. After serving the bank a little over a year I became restive, as my leather business was suffering, and sold out my interest to Mr. Lightbody. The deposits at the time were: on certificates—Sixty-eight thousand dollars; deposit ledger, seventy-eight thousand dollars. We considered the bank in fine condition, considering the fact there was no surplus money. It was all needed with which to buy or build. Mr. Lightbody could find no one that suited as a partner. There were parties who wanted to buy and finally he sold to the following gentlemen: the late Hon. Hamilton H. Harkness and John P. Hoyt, who in turn sold to the late Timothy Jackson.

The Badger State was finally wound up; the Central reorganized, and now is the First National. The Producers was never opened for business. Alexander Grey and A. Hyatt Smith were the organizers. It was intimated on the street they intended it to be the clearing house for the state of Wisconsin and possibly regions beyond, of the ancient secret order (with its auxiliary) of the memorabilia One Thousand and One.

We cannot be too thankful for our stable currency, for which we are largely indebted to the late President Cleveland, who took a decided stand that our circulating medium should be based upon gold, instead of paper money. Tariff and currency are two extremely sensitive questions.

Mr. Hunter was a good-hearted man; Mr. Dimick, too good-hearted; or, accommodating, for a banker. Mr. Doe was a fine businessman and a pattern for young men.

The banks of our city are an honor to it. By way of advice, I would urge the young people to open accounts in the savings departments. I know of a good many that have. Don't spend all your money for theatre amusements or useless expenditures, but be saving, for some day the money will do you good.

Chicago and North-Western

The motor car was sent to Chicago this morning for repairs which were made necessary by its collision with a sand gondola two weeks ago. It is probable that it will not be put on the Holt run again. Engine 521 with an accommodation car in charge of Conductor McDonald and Engineer Meyer has the motor car's run.

By a new ruling all railroad supplies used or distributed in Janesville will be stored at the new yards and be in charge of R. H. Lee.

The roundhouse force was given an agreeable surprise yesterday when Foreman W. W. Hoffman allowed them to quit work at 4:30 and furnished the means for getting down town and voting before supper. Under the old regime a strike would have been necessary to secure a concession of this kind, and the action, uncollected as it

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE position of United States Deputy Marshal is one that will scarcely be cared for by the average woman. Miss Sadie Hurne and Miss Marie Fessett, of Oklahoma, both hold such positions. Their first work was that of making a several hundred-mile trip on horseback into the Indian Territory to serve subpoenas in a murder case.

Ada C. Sweet, formerly United States Pension Agent in Chicago, was the first woman ever appointed as disbursing agent for the United States government.

Women as mail carriers on the rural delivery routes have proven successful in many places in Ohio and New Hampshire. One young woman drives thirty-two miles a day, delivering the mails for four village postoffices. Besides this she carries passengers from the stations in her wagon which nets her a goodly sum on the side. There are 7,670 women postmistresses in the United States government employ, some of them receiving more than $1,800 a year.

The head librarian of the Bureau of Public Documents at Washington is a woman who draws a large salary. Probably the highest-paid woman in the United States service are two young women translators of French and Spanish, employed at the Bureau of American Republics. They receive $2,400 a year.

When the Civil Service commission filed their last report it showed seven women employed by the government were receiving $1,800 a year, forty-six were drawing $1,600, ten were paid $1,500, two hundred and fifteen had $1,400 and six hundred were receiving from $1,200 to $1,300 a year.

Woman's field for earning money is surely no longer confined to the cook stove, sewing machine or wash tub. Every day finds her entering on new and hitherto untrodden paths, originally thought suitable only for men. Her sphere of usefulness is enlarging with her growing ambition.

Chief Appleby this morning received a letter from the C. & N. W. Ry. superintendent's office in Chicago asking for the co-operation of the local officers in keeping small boys and loafers out of the Janesville depot.

The writer, S. W. Dalley, says in part: "Our agent is doing all that he possibly can to keep this class of people away, but it is impossible to do so, and we wish you would please have your men look into the matter and see if we cannot get rid of this nuisance, as they not only litter up the place, but they scratch up the sidewalk and woodwork, which gives our building there a very bad appearance."

BIG PREPARATIONS FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Gymnasts Who Are to Take Part in Athletic Exhibition Are Getting Ready for Event.

The hundred or more members of the Y. M. C. A. who are to participate in the exhibition to be given at the high school building, April 15, are going on daily and the athletes are getting into condition for the appearance on that night. The singers and those who appear in the special stunts are also practicing steadily.

According to the present plans the exhibition will be one of the best ever given in the city and no pains or trouble is being spared to make it a fine entertainment. The program will contain music and vaudeville acts interspersed with the athletic drills and gymnastic feats to maintain the liveliest interest throughout the entire evening. The opening number will be a chorus followed by ring stunts. Other features in the gymnastic line will be an exhibition of wrestling, drills on the horizontal and parallel bars and drill work. In the line of sensational athletics will be some special numbers. George H. Standa, well known, professionally, in this city, will show his strength and prowess by mighty feats requiring the full use of his muscular ability. The thing that promises to attract the most attention is the singing of the "Ball-headed Quartette." In selection these there were considerable difficulties to find ones that filled all of the desired qualifications. But Mr. Hirsch has discovered four of the most handsome, well-developed, are good singers and who are absolutely devoid of any cranial infirmities. For these, elegant costumes have been secured so that their appearance on the stage will be both imposing and striking. The names of the four gentlemen are withheld by request.

Among the musical numbers will be several by the Mendelssohn club. The finale will be torch club swinging by two who have been making the best showing in the practice.

OUR PREPOSTEROUS BANK-NOTE SYSTEM

The last monthly statement by the comptroller of the currency on the condition of the national bank-note circulation throws a lurid light upon the operation of our bond-secured note system. With money going begging in New York at less than two per cent, with gold exports drawing away the surplus of currency even under a discount rate of two and a half per cent at the Bank of England, and with bank officers racking their brains to find a means to make profitable use of surplus deposits, our beautiful system of bank-note issue has resulted in an expansion of $10,553,505 in bond-secured notes in a single month.

To the uninitiated, and even to one who understands the defects of the system, this sudden expansion under such conditions will probably present a mystery. The explanation, however, is not far to seek. Government bonds on deposit in the treasury to protect deposits of public money in the banks dropped within the month from about $61,000,000 to $51,000,000, as the result of the call by the treasury for the surrender of the deposits. The banks did not want to part with the bonds. Therefore, without regard to the demand for currency, they calmly transferred the $10,000,000 in bonds released against deposits to the account of circulation.

If it had been the intent of the secretary of the treasury to tighten up the money market and check gold exports by withdrawing money from circulation, his purpose would have been defeated by the issue of new bank-notes against the bonds released. The actual situation is even worse, since the secretary of the treasury is required, as the result of a large deficit, to pay out almost at once the currency withdrawn from the banks. Thus, the volume of circulation is not only not reduced by the reduction of deposits in the banks, but a new inflation of useless bank-notes is superadded to the mass of idle currency already in the market.

One of the profits that the present circulation is ridiculously redundant is the rapidly with which bank-notes pile up in the treasury cash for retirement, even under the extremely slow and ineffective system provided by the national banking law. Secretary Cortelyou was nearly swamped with this influx of bank-notes last summer, when the maximum in the treasury cash reached about $67,000,000. The employment of an extra force and perpetual work has reduced the amount at the present time to about $22,000,000, but the extent of the influx may be judged by the fact that the notes redeemed and retired since the beginning of the fiscal year on July 1 last, have reached $77,870,485.

This is entirely apart from current redemptions, where the notes go back to the banks for release. The volume of notes received in this way from July 1, 1908, to April 2, 1909, was $321,787,029.

ELECTION ECHOES

Wilbur F. Carlo has been elected Mayor of Janesville by the voters of the city. These same voters have also named Roy Cummings as their choice for city clerk and have elected five republican aldermen and two democratic ones in the five wards of the city. The complexion of the council will be six republican and four democratic, a gain of one for the republicans. From present appearances the new council promises to be a good one for the handling of the city's business. It is composed of men who are experienced in business, men who are representative citizens, and there should be no discord or petty difference to spoil the work of the ten city fathers who make the ordinances for the city and transact its business. The vote of yesterday was exceptionally large for a spring election and there is no doubt of whom the voters wanted for their officials.

TATTA'S SMILE

Tatta's smile is far more influential than was Roosevelt's Big Stick. He has apparently wiped out all the differences between the republican members of the lower house of congress by his smile and pleasing manner and legislation is going to be pushed forward with a vim that denotes hearty accord with the needs of the country. It is a case of sugar catching more flies than vinegar.

The Beloit common council among its recent ordinances has passed a series of regulations that would surprise Janesville residents if they had to live up to them. Take, for instance, the one which does not permit saloon men to go into their place of business on Sundays. Think what would happen if the Janesville council passed such an ordinance!

Chicago also had an election yesterday and a grand "wolf" hunt resulted in defeat of many of the aldermanic candidates who were condemned by the voters' league.

Now that election is over it is time to talk about something else besides politics. Let's gossip about spring and Fourth of July plans.

April showers made yesterday look dark and dreary to many, and even today's sunshine has not dispelled the clouds in some quarters.

Bellevue went wet yesterday, but it was so close that the saloon men did not appreciate the victory very much.

Mr. Roosevelt has been abroad before, but not in the capacity of an ex-president.

Twenty counties in Michigan went dry despite the wet spring weather.

"LUCKY" BALDWIN.

"Lucky" Baldwin is dead. All his life long he was misnamed. He lived to be eighty years of age and was successful. And men are not uniformly lucky for eighty years. Instead of "Lucky," he should have been called "Plucky" Baldwin.

Men, looking at his successful career, attributed his success to some special favor of fate or to birth under some lucky star.

It did not seem to occur to them that the fortunate strikes of the bold operator were the result of carefully mapped out campaigns and that Baldwin was a cool headed, brainy, forceful man.

In his mining deals he came in contact with the shrewd, long sighted men of his day. He came out best in his ventures because he was shrewder and longer sighted than they.

Baldwin was plucky. His nerve and daring carried through big deals which he had carefully thought out in advance.

For instance—When he wanted Sharon & Jones to close their option on a big mining deal he offered them a check for $200,000 to abandon it, accurately forecasting that they would do the opposite.

It is told of him that he secured the control of the Ophir mine by engaging in a fist fight with the entire board of directors of the company, holding up the proceedings for half an hour while his lawyer was securing an injunction.

Baldwin was badly beaten up, but the injunction, it is said, made him half a million dollars.

Which was pure pluck.

He had foresight also. When he bought the big ranch in California and began to spend a fortune in improvements the people openly sneered at the venture. It was called "Baldwin's Folly," but he lived to see the day when it was one of the most valuable estates in the world.

Pluck is luck.

Foresight is fortune.

While Baldwin's career, including the rough days of racing and gambling, is not a career fit to be held up for the close emulation of the young, it does prove that brains and courage are more than luck.

Baldwin was not luckier than most men.

He was pluckier than most men.

Easy Enough to Reform.

Stop grumbling. Get up two hours earlier in the morning and do something out of your regular profession. Mind your own business and with all your might let other people's alone. Live within your means. Give away or sell your dog. Go to bed early. Talk less of your own peculiar gifts and virtues and more of those of your friends and neighbors. Be cheerful. Fulfill your promises. Pay your debts. Be yourself all you would see in others. Be a good man and stop grumbling.—Sheffield (Pa.) Press.

The Ill-Natured Man.

The ill-natured man, though but of equal parts with the good-natured man, gives himself a larger field to expatiate in. He exposes those failings in human nature which the other would cast a veil over; laughs at vices which the other either excuses or conceals; falls differently upon friends or enemies; exposes the person who has obliged him; and, in short, attacks at nothing that may establish his character of a wit.

The Good Old Days.

A Leicester (Eng.) man, who is believed to be 103 years of age, remembers taking service with a Spalding farmer for 4d. a day and a little milk in the mornings, sometimes paying out of his wages 8d. a week for his lodgings elsewhere, and finding his food and clothes. He says the poor of those days did not eat so much as they do now. He had bought tea in London at 14s. a pound.

British Women Voters.

A return of the number of women voters in England and Wales who are qualified to vote for county councils and for councilors in municipal boroughs shows that the women's franchise for county councils extends to 563,941 for England and 41,945 for Wales, making a total of 605,886. For county borough councils in England and Wales the number is 255,862, and for non-county borough councils there are 131,421 voters for England, 5,903 for Wales, making a total of 137,324.

MERE INCIDENT IN FOOTBALL

Broken Collar Bone, Supposed to Be Enemy's, Considered a Detail of the Game.

There had been a hotly contested football game between the Steamrollers of the Benjamin Franklin school and the Avalanches of the George Washington school. After the game was over and the contestants had returned to their various homes one of the heroes of the winning team complained of a feeling of soreness in the lower part of his neck.

"I didn't feel it until just now," he said, "but it hurts like sixty!" His father examined it. It began to swell, and was very sore to the touch.

"I believe your collar bone is broken, my boy," said his father.

A surgeon was hastily summoned, and made an examination.

"Yes," he said, "the bone is fractured. How did it happen, Walter?"

Do you remember anything about it?"

"Why, yes," answered the boy. "I remember that when I tackled Sidney Morgan I fell on top of him, and I heard something crack, but I thought it was his collar bone."—Youth's Companion.

Following Illustrous Example.

An art student in Berlin wrote recently to a brewing concern in Bohemia, offering to paint for the brewers "pictures suitable for advertising purposes—artistic, appropriate, attractive and cheap." He goes on to say: "Sir John Mills was not above taking 40,000 marks from a soapmaker for one of his paintings, to be used as an advertisement. Nor did he hesitate to offer other pictures for the same purpose at the same price. Why should not I, who owe my tailor, and who fear to look my landlady in the face, not do the same? Stay! I shall do better. Am willing to take less than 40,000 marks for my best work."

J. L. SNYDER

Myers Hotel Parlor.

Ability Appreciated. Sir Charles Wyndham (speaking at a dinner) told of a young man he once heard of who was paying attention to a lady to the great disgust of her father, who remonstrated very kindly with him. The father said: "If I see you in this house again I shall kick you out." The young man came back the very next day. "I told you what would happen," said the father, and it did happen. The young man did not appear for about five weeks, and then one day the father saw him coming toward the house, and immediately went and opened the front door. "Haven't you had enough?" said the old man. "Have you come again to see my daughter?" "No, no," replied the other. "I have come on behalf of the president of our football club."

Successful Furnaces...

The Peck-Williamson Underfeed heating way is the one sure way of escaping big and frequent coal bills. The Underfeed system of heating applied to warm air furnaces makes it possible to get from the cheapest slack, not burnable in other plants, as much clean, even heat as highest grade anthracite will yield. Coal is fed from below, all the fire is on top. Smoke and gases must pass through the flame and are consumed. This underfeed coal burning plan solves the smoke nuisance, improves clean homes and better health. Ashes are fine and are removed by shaking the grate bar as in ordinary furnaces. Saves from one-half to two-thirds of coal bill. FOR SALE BY

EASTER BONNETS ARE MUCH IN EVIDENCE

More Men Know Nothing of the Joys of This Period of the Year's Shopping.

Already the subject of Easter is current conversation. And, strangely, we admit it, it just can't help but bring to mind the Easter bonnet. If women will be honest they'll confess to visions of the worst Easter. Not that they have religious reverence less but pretty millinery more. Truth to tell, the fair sex are shopping in squads, for in a leisurely walk around the streets at 2 o'clock in the afternoon one finds little knots of girls and women gazing critically and longingly in at the enticing creations in the hat shop windows. But there is apt to come a death blow to cherished hopes—for they do say that ministers in other cities are demanding removal of feminine head dress at services in most of the churches. Alack, Alack! What's the use of having a pretty hat if you can't display it to the admiration of your best friend or flaunt it in the envious eyes of your dearest enemy? And where so good a vantage ground as that mutual meeting place—the church?

To lay aside the frivolous topic of dress, there's the real labor side of the coming Easter. Church workers are busy with new songs, programs and plans for the services that day which is observed in both Sunday school and church proper. Choirs are preparing their anthems, and orchestras are practicing faithfully on new musical compositions to make glad the Easter tide.

But, are only the women interested in the season of Spring rejuvenation? Don't worry. The men are apparently indifferent as to Easter apparel, but shop keepers could testify to the unmitigated interest of the stronger sex in the and history of dainty hues, and their almost feminine lingering before the cases, and it is safe to say that on Easter morning the pot can't call the kettle black and that all of our houses will be glass. Another thing, when it is all over, the social world will resume its customary swing—and hostesses won't be afraid to tell.

EXPRESS COMPANY TO REMAIN IN THE CITY

United States Express Company Will Keep Present Quarters Working Over Interurban Line.

Although the business of the United States Express company on the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railroad has been turned over to the Wells-Fargo Express company and will be handled by that company in this city, the United States will still maintain an office here. It was expected when the change came that the United States company would leave the city, but they will remain and will probably keep their old quarters. They will continue in business here, using the interurban line as a means of transmission of freight. Mr. Wolf, of the Wells-Fargo company is in the city making the arrangements for the establishment of their office here. Their representative in Jamesville has not been selected, but it is probable that Mr. James H. Hotford will be their choice.

BOEHM TAKES OATH TO DRINK NO MORE

Attacked And Drove Family From His Home While in a Drunken Frenzy Last Evening.

Charles Boehm, who is a genuine bad man when under the influence of intoxicants, took a solemn oath before Judge Philoit this morning to refrain from the use of liquor and the abuse of his family in the future and signed a written declaration to that effect. The wife and daughter who were attacked and driven out of their home at 1025 South Washington street by being about ten o'clock last evening were unwilling to make a complaint and have him punished. They declare that there is no serious fault to be found with him when he is sober. While driving over the tracks beyond the Monterey bridge, on his way home, he has a half-brother escape from being run down by a train, and is said to have been in such a savage frame of mind when he reached the house that his wife had nearly all her clothes torn from her body before she could escape his clutches.

Boehm has been in trouble a number of times and once served a full sentence for his part in a cutting off. His present wife married him in Germany soon after the death of his first wife and it was regarding her safety and whereabouts that relatives in the old country wrote the German consul in Chicago not long ago.

Unless the offender takes a new tack he is most certainly destined to occupy a prison cell. It is likely that his name will be placed on the black list and all saloonkeepers forbidden to sell drinks to him.

DANGEROUS FAKES.

Tricks to introduce Alum Baking Powder which should be Exposed.

There has recently been attempted at some of our grocery stores, and also at dwelling of our houses, by agents who are trying to sell alum baking powder, what the exhibitors call a baking powder test. They pretend to show by some boiling test that pure cream of tartar baking powder contains something which every woman of intelligence knows they do not.

It does not need a chemist to expose this trick. Cream of tartar, which is the chief constituent of the best and most wholesome baking powder, is originally a clear, white crystal. This is ground into a fine, creamy flour, in which form, mixed with baking soda, it is present in the baking powder. Cream of tartar, simply returns with water and boiled, simply returns to its crystalline form, and that is all there is to the so-called test.

The matter of special interest to the public is to know what these people offer in place of cream of tartar powders of well-known purity and established reputation against which these fakes are directed. They are offering a baking powder which official analyses have repeatedly shown is made from alum, a drug so well recognized by physicians and scientists as injurious to health that in many countries its use is in fact entirely prohibited. So cheap and so inferior are the ingredients of this powder that it costs to make less than three cents a pound. No prudent housewife will knowingly put such stuff as this into her food.

Elephant Turned Off Water.

Julio, one of the elephants at the Central park zoo in New York, gave a clever demonstration the other day of the wisdom of her tribe. There is a hydrant just outside of Julio's cage and until Saturday it had been fitted with a round handle to turn on and off the flow of water. On Saturday William Walker, the zoo plumber, fitted a new spigot on the hydrant and put it on a permanent T-shaped handle. Julio carefully examined the handle several times Sunday. She looked it over again, and after much fumbling, turned it and produced a flow of water. Then she put her trunk under the stream, filled it and drank copiously. What pleased Keeper Snyder more than anything else was that she carefully turned off the flow of water after drinking.

SMALL MARGIN IN ANTISDEL'S FAVOR

Incomplete Returns Show That He Has a Lead of 73 Over Eddy in Race for County Superintendency.

The outcome of the race for county superintendent of schools between O. D. Antisdel and A. G. Eddy and the county's vote for the various candidates for state superintendent of schools will not be known with any degree of exactness until the returns are canvassed by the committee consisting of L. E. Gettle of Edgerton, John A. Paul of Milton, and County Clerk Howard Lee at ten o'clock Friday morning. The cities of Deloit and Jamesville did not vote for county superintendents. Mr. Antisdel, at a late hour this afternoon, had received the following incomplete returns:

	Antisdel	Eddy
Harmony	30	31
Jamesville	30	31
Johnstown	33	66
Milton	42	29
Rock	38	57
Evansville	60	61
	349	286

He had also been informed that the town of Deloit gave Eddy a majority of 10, while four other precincts were carried for Antisdel by the following margins: Bradford, 3; Center, 4; Spring Valley, 3; and Village of Clinton, 10. By this showing Mr. Antisdel's total lead is 73.

Incomplete returns from the city last evening showed the following total vote for state superintendent: Wood 163, Cary 157, Hooper 100, Hewitt 30. It will be impossible to obtain the complete returns, even for the city, until the vote is canvassed by the common council Thursday night.

Later Returns.
Later returns received by Mr. Antisdel show that Edgerton gave Eddy 235 and Antisdel 124, while the Village of Milton gave Eddy but 20 to 98 for Antisdel.

D. of R. No. 171: There will be no staff practice Thursday evening as previously given out.

The interesting face of an interesting Democrat, Congressman William Sulzer.

New York—They say that Congressman William Sulzer is a very probable nominee for mayor of Greater New York, one of the biggest official jobs in the United States. Congressman Sulzer has been a prominent character on the government map of the U. S. A. for many years. When the Democrats will in the house of representatives, Sulzer, it is said, re-framed to take orders from "Boss" Murphy of Tammany, who wanted him to vote for the old rules of the Cannon regime. Sulzer lined up hard and fast with those who opposed "Cane Joe." Now it is said that Tammany will turn him down for re-nomination to his place in congress from the metropolis. It is generally declared that if this result follows, William Sulzer is bound to become a most prominent factor in the next mayoralty race, and in view of his abilities and popularity there are many who already name him as the next mayor of Greater New York.

THE GATUN DAM

BY JAMES LINDSAY

A New Canal Lock, one of the largest in America, but only one-half as large as those proposed for Gatun.

After a Blast

Excavation for Spillway, Gatun

THE Gatun Dam has a well-established position as the bugaboo of the canal. The Chagres used to be the arch-bogy, but now the structure which is designed to restrain that voracious stream has usurped the first place in the interest and apprehension of the public. The criticisms and suspicions that have been directed against the great dam can only be accounted for by the fact that it is the key to the whole plan and the most essential feature of it. Any disaster that can be met upon it affects the entire lock level project, and as the opponents of the canal concentrate their attacks on what they consider the most vulnerable quarter. The average individual, lacking technical knowledge of the subject, is prone to accept these strictures. To him the mere idea of the huge mound involves a menace. But this is a mistaken view. As a matter of fact, a considerable degree of its safety lies in its enormous bulk and weight.

The Gatun Dam will fill the gap in the hills enclosing the Valley of the Chagres, through which that river passes on its way to the Atlantic Ocean. The obstruction of its course will force the stream and its tributaries to empty on the upper side of the dam and to form a lake about 100 miles in extent. The water in this immense reservoir will stand at an elevation of 85 feet above sea level and its depth will range from 45 to 75 feet, so that very little excavation will be needed. The canal course across Gatun Lake will be 23 miles in length, or more than half the entire distance from shore to shore. Along this stretch ships will have the advantage of open and unobstructed navigation.

Gatun Dam will stretch across the valley in a length approximately one and a half miles. Its crest will be 135 feet above sea level and from that it will slope down to 40 feet, the distance from face to toe being half a mile. It will be composed of selected material impervious to water and reinforced along its front and back by heavy walls of rock. The dam will exert a weight upon its foundations of one ton to every 20 feet of height, so that under the crest the pressure will be nearly seven tons to the square foot. The safety of such a structure depends upon its composition and the nature of its foundation. As to the former, engineers are inclined to think that unnecessary trouble is being taken in the selection of the material to be used and that ordinary soil from the excavations would answer the purpose adequately. Sand and clay in a fluid state will be pumped in between the rock walls and when the water drains off will leave a compact mass proof against seepage.

Lock and Dam, Gatun.

The substructure of the dam site has been thoroughly ascertained. It is questionable whether any need of such careful and extensive tests. The first borings were made about five years ago in connection with investigations relating to a new level waterway. It is questionable whether any need of such careful and extensive tests. The first borings were made about five years ago in connection with investigations relating to a new level waterway. It is questionable whether any need of such careful and extensive tests. The first borings were made about five years ago in connection with investigations relating to a new level waterway.

Now, as to the recent occurrence at Gatun, which has led to so much agitation: a few days on the spot were more than sufficient to disclose the fact that it was positively insignificant. It could not in justice be described as an accident, for it was no more than a slight slumping of material, such as engineers always look for in a large fill. On the line they fully expected something of the kind and anticipated more than one recurrence of the same thing before the dam is completed. It should be understood that there has been no caving in nor falling down of the Gatun Dam, as stated in several sensational published accounts of the affair. The Gatun Dam is not in existence. If it were, we should be very near the end of our task. The preliminary work upon it has but just begun and it was in connection with this that the little slumping occurred, whose rumble is still echoing throughout the States, although on the isthmus it hardly caused the turning of a head.

As has been said, it is proposed to support the dam at its front and back with walls of rock. The material for these has been dumped during the past few months, and it was taken out of the excavation at this disposal. At the close of last summer a mound of this rock was made on the west bank of the old French canal, which runs through the dam site and will eventually be covered by the structure. This portion of the rock wall was 60 feet high in one place and sloped toward the channel. It stood for three months without any movement. In November the engineers began to pump the water out of the old canal in order to remove from its bed the soft material which has accumulated since the cut was made and which would be undesirable to leave beneath the dam. Just at this time unusually heavy rains caused floods along the line and a temporary lake was formed on the side of the rock mound, opposite to that on which the canal runs. As a result great pressure was exerted against the mass of material on one side, whilst the resistance was decreased on the other by the removal of the water from the cut. In consequence, the heap of rock slid a few feet into the old canal and at the same time a small portion of it sank into its foundation to a depth of somewhat less than seven feet. It was this trivial occurrence, which an engineer would hardly deem of sufficient importance to include in his annual report, that furnished the text for columns of alarming criticism.

The question will naturally arise to the mind of the reader: "Why, if there was no greater cause for anxiety, did Mr. Taft go to the isthmus accompanied by a special investigating commission?" As to that, it can only be said that the President chose a somewhat cumbersome and indirect method of quieting the clamor and easing the public mind. He was fully satisfied with the explanation of the affair immediately advanced by the commission and the chief engineer, and they were given to understand that such was the case. It was clearly understood on the spot that the purpose of appointing the special board of engineers was solely to restore public confidence, and none knew better than the men engaged in the work that the visiting commission could not make any sort of effective investigation in the time allowed to them. A month or two would have been necessary for the accomplishment of such a task. As it was they were compelled to rely upon the statements of the engineers on the line, which there is no reason to believe were in the slightest degree prejudicial of the fact. The work on the canal is proceeding with admirable swiftness and dispatch. The men on whom the chief responsibility rests are proving themselves to be quite equal to the task, and it allowed to proceed without unnecessary interruptions, such as the recent "investigation," will complete it in the time set by them—they is to say, before the close of the year 1915. It has been so to speak, up to the point of starting down grade. Absolutely all the data necessary is in hand. The ground is ready for the work of building the concrete structures by which the termination of the operation will be required. Contracts have been let for the construction of the dam and lock, and two large vessels have been bought to transport the material. A change of plan might be made now with little loss, for the work done so far would apply to a somewhat different plan, but hereafter every day's work will turn to a dead loss in case the type of canal is altered.

The construction of the locks at Gatun, Pedro Miguel and Miraflores will commence simultaneously, and will be pushed with all possible speed. It is proposed to consume about 8,000,000 barrels of cement a day. Half this amount will be used at Gatun alone, where 20 masonry are to be installed along the line of the lock walls. FORREST LINDSAY.

Could Germany Suppress England?

ENGLISHMEN—those usually calm and phlegmatic individuals—are now and have been for a year all alarmed over an alleged plot of Germany to suddenly land her superb army of say 500,000, of the best drilled soldiers in the world on the east shores of England. Any number of special articles have been written on the subject, the statements have been questioned and belied in Parliament about the matter, and a dozen novels and half as many very popular melodramas have been written on the subject. Sir John Fisher, who is generally considered the greatest of the fighting admirals of England of this day and generation, has evidently given much time and attention to studying the possibility and the feasibility of Germany ever attempting to accomplish this tremendous feat. Sir John says of the idea: "I am of the opinion that it could happen far more easily than most people think. With submarines by day and torpedo-boat destroyers sweeping the seas at night, the North Sea will be an impossible place for battleships in war. The big fleets of both parties will be beeline boats and defenses at their own most, but unwilling to venture out except on concerted plans of battle. "Torpedo destroyers will fight one another and every old cruiser and old fashioned gunboat will be sent out. There will be many small battles, partial actions and so forth, and at any time Germany might succeed in rushing an invading army across the Channel. These might meet destroyers, but Germany has many more of these particular craft than England. "But the real danger lies in the fact that Germany might come from the Cuxhaven direction or just as probably go round Helder the Baltic and come out at the north of Denmark. British ships which could watch one direction could not do so in the other. "A remedy is imperative and the only way to safety lies on the water. There must be many new boats built to catch the exits from Germany's ports. They do not have to be very fast or extremely powerful, but they must be built and kept on the watch, for as soon as Great Britain and Germany ever go to war the latter country will attempt to invade England and capture London."

Home Course In Modern Agriculture

XIV.—Some Points on Stock Feeding

By C. V. GREGORY,

Agricultural Division, Iowa State College

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

In order that the feeds fed to stock may be used to the best possible advantage it is necessary that they should be of the proper kind and fed in the proper amounts.

One of the important things to take into account in determining the value of a feeding stuff is its digestibility. Some feeds, such as oat straw, are not more than 50 per cent digestible, while in the case of the corn grain over 90 per cent is used by the animal. Feeds with a high percentage of digestibility, like the grains, are called concentrates, while those with a large amount of indigestible crude fiber are called rough feeds.

Every animal must have a certain amount of roughage; otherwise the grain would lie in the stomach in a heavy, sodden mass, which could hardly be penetrated by the digestive juices, and indigestion would be sure to result. The crude fiber, while indigestible in itself, dilutes the more concentrated feeds and greatly hastens the process of digestion. The ruminants are able to obtain a large share of their feed from roughage. Horses use considerable, though owing to their smaller stomach they cannot use as large quantities as cattle do. Swine are usually regarded as grain eating animals, yet they, too, do better for having some roughage. Mature hogs will maintain themselves on a good rape or clover pasture without any grain at all, and fattening swine will make greater gain if fed on pasture.

FIG. XXVII.—THERE IS NO FOOD BETTER THAN MILK FOR YOUNG ANIMALS.

In winter, when pasture is not available, hogs will eat considerable amounts of clover or alfalfa hay if they can get it and will be healthier and make better gains for having it.

Another important quality in a feed-stuff is its palatability. Stock will make greater gains on feeds that they like, even though they contain no more nutritive material than those that are not so palatable. Closely related to palatability is succulence or juiciness. Cows give a large flow of milk on pasture not so much because of its high feeding value, but because of its succulence and palatability. Stock of any kind will not make the best use of their feed if given nothing but dry hay and grain.

The most satisfactory means of providing succulent and palatable feed during the winter is by the use of the silo. Silage has a high feeding value and is cheap, since from eight to twelve tons can be raised on an acre. It finds its greatest use as a feed for dairy cows, but also makes a profitable addition to the ration of nearly all classes of stock.

The most important point to consider in preparing a ration is the relative proportion of the different constituents. Fats and carbohydrates are interchangeable and can be considered together, since they both go to furnish heat and energy or to build up animal fat. Neither of these substances, however, can take the place of protein, since neither of them contains nitrogen. To build up the muscles, organs and other parts of the body which require this element considerable protein must be fed. The ordinary feeds found on the farm contain too little protein in proportion to the other substances. To secure the best results a balanced ration—that is, one in which the amount of protein is in the proper proportion to the amounts of fats and carbohydrates—must be fed.

It can be seen that a balanced ration for one class of stock may not be for another. Young calves, colts and pigs require more protein and ash in their food than do mature animals. A work horse needs large amounts of fat and carbohydrates to supply him with energy, but he also needs considerable protein to repair his muscles, which wear out very rapidly. A fattening steer needs only a minimum amount of protein, since he is neither growing nor using his muscles. A milk cow needs a great deal of protein and ash to use in making milk, together with a liberal amount of the other constituents, to supply energy and to make into butter fat. A pregnant animal is in especial need of protein and ash to use in building up the bones and flesh of its offspring. All animals need larger quantities of the heat forming elements in the winter in order to keep the body warm.

Another important point, one that must not be lost sight of in preparing rations for any class of stock, is the cost. It makes no difference how digestible, palatable or well balanced a ration may be for rapid gains if it will produce, if those gains are put on at too great an expense the feeding operation will result in a loss. For the last two years, for instance, bran and shorts have been so high in price that it is doubtful if they could be fed at a profit. Bran produces a "large" milk flow when fed to cows, but also and clover hay are just as good and cost only a fraction as much.

The question of how much a farmer can afford to spend for concentrated byproducts is always a perplexing one. Something is needed to balance the corn, which is the principal feed on most farms. If nothing else is fed with corn it will not be thoroughly digested and much of the nutrient which it contains will be wasted. When corn is cheap this does not matter so much, but when the price goes up to 50 or 60 cents a bushel it becomes an important consideration. This applies not only to corn, but to other grains as well, since all contain an excess of carbohydrates and fat. Oats come the nearest to being a balanced ration of any farm grain, but they are usually too expensive to be fed exclusively. Mixing oats with corn does not make a balanced ration, since the oats have scarcely enough protein to balance their own carbohydrates and fats. Another factor which must be taken into consideration is the health of the animals. This will surely suffer if they are compelled to live long on a single kind of feed, especially one that is as low in protein as corn is.

When grain is high in price the saving effected by the purchase of some supplementary feed rich in protein will usually much more than pay the cost. In buying feed to balance corn or other grain the chief consideration should be the amount of digestible protein which it contains. Ash is also important, especially if it is to be fed with corn, which is low in ash. By dividing the price per ton of a feed by the number of pounds of digestible protein in a ton the price per pound of protein is easily determined. Thus the comparative cost of protein in the different byproducts can be figured out and the one used which will furnish it in the cheapest form.

For hogs there is probably no better or cheaper source of protein than tankage or meat meal. A ration of one part of this to ten parts of corn is an ideal one for fattening hogs. For growing pigs the amount of tankage should be doubled and some skim milk added if it can be obtained. Milk is an almost perfect food for all young stock, and the farmer who has a large supply of it has a big part of his feeding problem solved.

Another feed that is invaluable for young pigs and calves is dried blood or blood flour. Nothing else will stop scours so quickly nor do so much toward starting along an unthrifty pig or calf. A heaping teaspoonful to a feed is enough for a young calf, with proportionate amounts for the pigs. The reason that these packing house byproducts are especially valuable for young animals is because of the large amount of ash which they contain. The use of such feeds insures strong bones and healthy, vigorous animals.

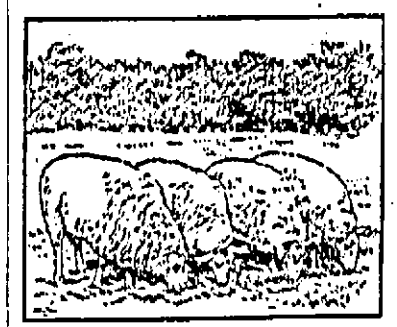

FIG. XXVIII.—CLOVER PASTURE IS AN EXCELLENT FOOD FOR PIGS.

A lack of ash is the chief fault that can be found with the corn byproducts, such as germ oil meal and gluten feed. For this reason these feeds are not so valuable for milk cows and young stock, although they are all right for fattening animals. Oil and cottonseed meals contain more ash than the corn products, but not so much as tankage. They are usually a cheap source of protein. Oilmeal is especially valuable for keeping the system in tone, the bowels loose and the coat sleek and glossy. Cottonseed meal should never be fed to hogs, as they often die from eating it.

There is nothing better than clover pasture to balance the ration of fattening swine. Clover pasture, with perhaps a small allowance of grain, is an ideal feed for milk cows, calves and colts. The little pigs will learn to eat it also, but will need considerable grain and skim milk in addition if they are to make rapid gains. Clover hay and corn is a ration for fattening cattle and sheep that cannot be beaten. Clover hay and alfalfa with a little corn, and oilmeal added is a first class winter feed for dairy cattle. Even for horses clover hay, if not dusty, is the best of roughage. Its liberal use for all classes of stock will reduce the cost of feeding and add to the profits. So it is evident that the wise farmer will not neglect to provide a clover pasture that is ample.

Property and Proprietors. The rights of property have been so much extended that the rights of the community have almost altogether disappeared and it is hardly too much to say that the prosperity and the comfort and the liberties of a great proportion of the population have been laid at the feet of a small number of proprietors, who neither toil nor spin. —Joseph Chamberlain.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

NEW FOLDING STOOL

Unusually Strong and More Compact Than Old Style.

Composed principally of iron rods, with a seat that may be either carpet or canvas, the folding stool devised by a New York man is a big improvement on the old style "camp stool." In addition to being much stronger than the wooden affair, it is much more compact and can be folded into a very small compass or even taken apart altogether and put together again with ease. The framework of the stool consists of two metal plates, with two holes side by side at each end. There are also four sets of iron rods, each bent to form three sides of a rectangle and slightly curved. The ends of two of these sets of rods are bent inward at right angles and the others are turned outward. The whole is joined by inserting in the holes in the metal plates the ends of the rods, thus forming a substantial stool, as shown in the cut. The seat is made by stretching a piece of carpet or canvas across the top rods and fastening the folds.

SEAGOING RAILWAY

New Amusement Device Gives Effect of Ocean Travel.

The new pleasure railway invented by a Chicago man is not recommended to persons subjected to seasickness. Those not affected by the rise and plunge of a ship will probably find in the amusement a new and exciting sensation. The railway consists of two pairs of tracks, the two rails at each side of the center of the tracks having inclined portions, the inclined portion of one rail being parallel to the adjacent inclined portion of the other, and the distance between the two varying with the inclination.

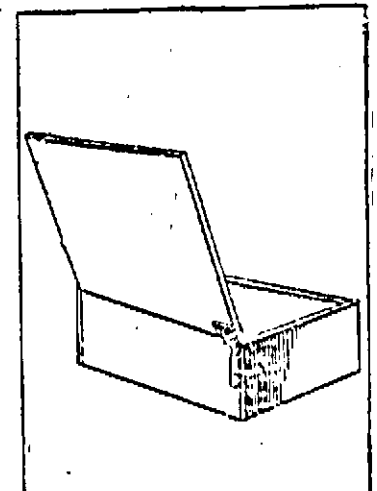

CARS GO UP AND DOWN.

Four-wheeled trucks run over these rails, and the cars are dependent from the trucks. These cars are open and made on the type of the average ocean rail car, with a double-deck arrangement. The whole trackway is on an inclined plane, so that when a car is started it goes jerking and plunging, rising and dipping along its course, giving the impression as if a ship at sea, with the exception that it runs at a much greater speed.

HOLDS BOX LIDS OPEN

Can Also Be Used for Opening Those That Are Nailed.

The salesman who says it is no trouble to show goods does not mean that literally, as everyone knows, but in the case of a salesman who shows goods in boxes it is very really true. Two North Dakota men have invented a combination box-opener and hold-open device that is destined to be a great trouble-saver, though it does seem strange that it took two men to invent a little thing like that. The device is of metal, and has a thin edge which can be slipped under the lid of a tightly closed box, in order to open it. It is equipped with a notch for use in cases where the lid is nailed and where it is necessary to draw out the nail. Any man who has seen the instrument with which chair dealers open boxes will understand what it is like. Then, after the lid is open, a click on the other end of the holder grips it, while the long arm of the device extends along the back of the box and holds it in position.

AID FOR WEATHER MAN

Device Helps Him Trace Progress of Storm Areas.

A public-spirited citizen of California has done his best to aid the weatherman in the difficult and thankless task of predicting atmospheric disturbances, and has devised a device of great value to the public. For the benefit of those who have never seen the interior of a forecaster's office, it must be explained that the operator takes his position on a combination of various maps, which portray the storm areas in different parts of the country and show what sort of weather is coming to his locality. This is a dizzy task, so the inventor has designed a series of transparent maps, which operate in a slide, arranged upright at the back of a desk. A movable electric light is adjusted to the top of the slide, so that it can be placed in back of any of the maps, to be examined, showing up the lines of storm areas clearly and distinctly, leaving the other confusing elements of the diagrams in obscurity to the chief features.

An Innocent Victim

"Speaking of spring," said the drug-wait as he rested for a moment from overhauling his soda fountain, "I bought out a drug store in a town in Vermont a few years ago. I was a stranger to the town and its ordinances. Along about the middle of May I began overhauling the soda fountain, as I am doing now. "That that couldn't have had anything to do with the town ordinance," replied the party addressed. "You wait a minute, I noticed that customers who came in looked at me in a queer way, but I did not give much attention until a constable came in and informed me that I was under arrest. "What for? What had you done?" "Overhauled my old soda fountain," "But didn't you a right to do that?" "But it was only the middle of May, you see." "What had that to do with it?" "Why, it spoiled the sleighing. Yes, sir, it spoiled the sleighing, and some came, and the snow and the sleighing disappeared fully two months before the usual time." "And you—you—" "Oh, I paid the $10 fine and promised never to do so again, but between you and me that had a good deal to do with my selling out and leaving the state." —JOE KERR.

An Easy Way.

"Well," he said to the other man on the hind platform of the car with him, "I thought it is off to Africa." "Yes." "He is going to hunt and explore." "I believe so." "While you have been lost in Africa," "They have." "Livingstone was lost there for months and months, if you remember." "Yes, I remember." "And they had to send out Stanley to find him." "Yes." "And our ex-President may get lost." "I don't know." "And if he does get lost, sir—if he does get lost, what then? You must think of this thing, sir, and ask yourself what then?" "I have thought of it and got it all figured out. I think it is dead easy." "How, sir?" "Why, Senator Ben Tillman could find him within thirty days!" Nothing further was said for two or three minutes, and then the old chap who had begun the conversation threw the stick of his cigar away and said: "Sir, you are a man of flippant character, and it would be useless to ask you what you thought of the Tart administration, up to date." —JOE KERR.

MILBURN FIGHTS TO SAVE STANDARD OIL COMPANY

Declares the Trust's Product May Be Found Wherever Civilized Man Lives.

St. Louis, Apr. 7.—John G. Milburn of New York, and the Standard Oil Company's chief counsel of record, commenced the presentation of the defendant's side of the case in the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil of New Jersey for alleged violations of the Sherman act, now before the United States circuit court of this city.

Mr. Milburn began at once to tell much of the early history of the Standard Oil corporation, from the viewpoint of the defense. The two principal points made by Mr. Milburn were that the giant corporation had done much for American industries and commerce, and that the oil business of the early days was of a "nondescript type."

"Wherever," said he, impressively, by way of commencement, "has trod the foot of civilized man; wherever the hoof of the camel has made its imprint upon the sands of the desert, or wherever flies the flag of any nation—there will be found the product of Standard Oil—the product of America and Americans."

The federal attorney, Mr. Kellogg, concluded his opening address for the government shortly after noon yesterday and then C. B. Morrison, formerly United States attorney in Chicago, and Mr. Kellogg's chief associate, finished the government's opening of the argument by a two-hour discussion of the alleged unfair competition, scoring the Standard heavily for its alleged secret gathering of reports, showing the business of competitors, and charging it further with maintaining a secret spy system.

Among other independents mentioned as having been "spied" upon by Mr. Morrison was the firm of Hilsen Brothers of Albany, N. Y., the senior member of which Tom Hilsen was the Independence League candidate for the presidency against Mr. Taft.

MAKE BANDIT A GOVERNOR.

Ralsull Now the Ruler of a Large Moorish District.

Washington, Apr. 7.—Ralsull, the notorious Moorish bandit, has been appointed governor of an extensive district including Arizona, on the Atlantic coast, and extending nearly to Tetuan on the Mediterranean, according to information received by the state department from the minister of Morocco.

This appointment followed Ralsull's action in renouncing his British protection and restoring to that government $100,000 extorted by him for the release of Kaid Sir Henry MacLean, whom he held for ransom.

TREATY UNDER DISCUSSION.

Conference in Washington on St. Mary's River Question.

Washington, Apr. 7.—The treaty relating to the disposition of the waters of St. Mary's river between Michigan and the Canadian boundary, which was ratified by the senate in an amended form, was the subject of a conference by representatives of the Canadian and the American governments.

A. B. Aylesworth, minister of justice, and George C. Gibbons, representative of the Dominion of Canada, while Secretary Knox, Senator Root, Attorney General Wickersham, Secretary Dickinson of the war department, and Chandler Anderson, attorney for the department of state, represented the United States.

The visitors, it is understood, were favorably impressed with the statements made to them by the Americans regarding their interpretation of the senate amendment by which a disposition of the waters of the St. Mary's river available for power purposes, shall be on a basis of the territorial rights of the two governments.

KILL FATHER; SAVE MOTHER.

California Boys with Axes Slay Their Angry Parent.

San Bernardino, Cal., Apr. 7.—Harry Irvington, a miner, arrived and brought news of a tragedy at Delamar, Nev., in which three boys killed their father in defending themselves after he had attacked their mother.

According to Irvington, William Thomas, a well known miner at Delamar, attempted to kill his wife by beating and kicking her to death. Leaving her unconscious he went to a shed near by where his three sons were chopping wood. Thomas, who had armed himself with a rope, declared that he had come to hang them all. He had placed the noose about the younger boy's neck and was preparing to haul him from the ground when his other sons interfered. With axes they rushed upon their father and killed him.

STUDENTS STRIKE FOR HOLIDAY.

Claim Minnesota University Haven't Kept Its Promise of Full Week.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 7.—Two hundred engineering students at the state university have gone on strike for a week's extra vacation. The strike became effective yesterday afternoon.

The students say last year a full week's extra vacation was requested of the faculty, but the students were informed that while the request could not be granted for 1908, arrangements would be made for a full week this year.

The students were apposed for the time being, but when they learned last week that only two days' absence from recitation were to be given them, they decided it was time to declare themselves.

Prominent Bostonian Ends Life.

Boston, Apr. 7.—The body of William F. Dache, a prominent life insurance agent of this city, and a well-known yachtsman, with the throat cut, was found on the golf links in Franklin park. A razor lay near by.

Bare Negroes from Elks.

Tronton, N. J., Apr. 7.—The house has passed a bill preventing negroes from using the name or wearing the emblem of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

THOMAS L. LEWIS

OPPOSING FORCES IN THE GREAT LABOR STRUGGLE.

Conflicting reports regarding the present status of the miners' strike in Pennsylvania are emanating from Scranton. Both the miners and the mine owners apparently are well prepared for a struggle, although it is hoped that the differences may be settled without a strike. Thomas L. Lewis on the one hand, as head of the Miners' union states that there is $7,000,000 available for the miners in the event of a strike. He declares that the union will not be bluffed. Opposed to this comes the statement of Archibald F. Law, vice president of the Temple Iron company, and Bae's spokesman. He says they have 12,000,000 tons of coal on hand, and will not recognize the union.

Daylight and Twilight.

A and nature sheds forth twilight. A merry and mirthful nature brings daylight. A suspicious nature insensibly imparts its chill to every generous soul within its reach. A bold and frank nature overcomes meanness in men. Firmness makes them true. Taste directs, stimulates and develops taste. —Henry Ward Beecher.

A Dog and a Button.

A boy ten years old, at Chester, Pa., held a button in his mouth while playing with the cat, and some movement of his sent it into his gullet. He could do nothing to relieve himself, and choking and gasping, he ran along the street to find a doctor. Seeing him run, a dog took after him and bit him in the leg, and the yell the boy gave sent the button flying out of his mouth and ten feet away. It is cheaper to be bitten by a dog than to pay the doctor's.

How to Test a Newspaper Advertisement

Is it Persistent?

A single newspaper advertisement, standing alone, cannot perhaps be said to possess within itself the quality of persistency of pertinacity. It can, however, form a part of and bear out a plan which a business house has adhered to strictly for years.

The trade mark, or name of a house which is reproduced in newspaper publicity in an individual or characteristic style, indicates that each advertisement containing it is one of a series or that the use of advertising space is an established policy of the house.

In no other way can a merchant win confidence or establish so thorough a credit with the public as by advertising prudently and persistently in the newspapers.

Confidence is a plant of slow growth, but persistency is its sun, rain and fertilizer.

When the late Frank Cooper, of Siegel, Cooper & Co., was running a store in Peoria and needed $10,000 he did not go to the bank for it. He frankly told the people that he wanted to raise this amount of money and got it by offering them inducements for immediate purchases.

Persistency in an advertiser is necessary to establish such a reputation with the people that he can command co-operation like this.

An advertiser establishes his character with the public the same as he does with his bank by persisting in making promises and never failing to fulfill them. A credit with the great general public is a very present help in time of need.

A persistent advertising campaign covering a period of three years in legitimate newspapers will seldom fail to produce a good will asset that is worth more to the advertiser than the entire amount spent in newspaper space during that time.

In preparing a newspaper advertisement, remember this quality of persistency—the fact that it is published as a part of a house's policy and will either build or break down prestige.

Too many people have fallen into the "50 cent-a-pound" habit. If you only knew the exquisite flavor of a 60 cent Japan you would not begrudge the slight additional cost. As an experiment try a half pound of our sixty cent Japan and judge for yourself if the superior flavor is not worth many times the extra five cents. Four tickets with each pound.

STANDARD- IZATION

What it means in a Cadillac "Thirty"

THE GREATEST DISTINCTIVE FEATURE of the Cadillac is their absolute interchangeability of parts.

Every part on the whole car except the coil and a few things like that, are made right in the Cadillac factory and all are made under rigid inspection to eliminate faulty material and workmanship, and by a system of micrometer measurements. Each and every part is an exact duplicate of every other part.

No other car has this standardization feature perfected like the Cadillac. Some are assembled cars and bear the stamp of a dozen factories in their making. Repairs do not fit when they come—more expense.

Think it over. Doesn't this feature of the Cadillac car appeal to you? Can't you see where it will save you money, and trouble, and delay?

Other discriminating buyers are choosing this car. Won't you "look into the matter?" We are pleased to show and demonstrate the "Thirty" at any time.

Held Responsible.

"Sir," said the old kicker in the street car to the man beside him with a newspaper, "you have got a morning paper in your hand."

"Just so," was the reply.

"It has, perhaps, got some Panama news in it?"

"Yes, it has."

"Perhaps it's about the canal?"

"You are correct."

"Perhaps it's about that Gatun Dam?"

"It surely is."

"Perhaps it reiterates that President Taft is perfectly satisfied about that dam, no matter what that French engineer has said?"

"I must give you the credit of being a wonderful guesser," replied the man with the paper. "Yes, Taft is perfectly satisfied. Aren't you?"

"No, sir—no, sir. I'm not a bit satisfied. On the contrary I'm altogether dissatisfied. I don't like it at all, sir—not at all."

"But what can you do about it?"

"What can I do, sir—what can I do? I will tell you what I can do, and what I propose to do. As soon as the canal is completed I shall go down there and ride back and forth on the passing vessels. I shall be right there when that Gatun Dam gives way. I shall be left high and dry in the mud."

"And then?" queried the other as the old kicker paused.

"And then, sir, I shall hold William H. Taft financially responsible and sue him for fifty thousand dollars' damages! Yes, sir, by gad, I will, sir—yes, sir, I will!"

Teacher—Willie, what is a strait?
Willie—Five consecutive cards of any suit.

Well Answered.
During the encampment of several regiments of British soldiers in a certain district the wood and turf used for cooking purposes were carted by the neighboring farmers. One day a donkey-cart full of turf was brought in, the driver being a country lad. As a regimental band was playing, he stood in front of the donkey and held the animal tightly by the head. Some of the "smarter ones" gathered round, highly pleased, and the wit of the party asked why he "held his brother so tightly." The reply was crushing: "I'm afraid he might enlist."

Remark of the Grouch.
"When Johnny came marching home," grumbled the Philosopher of Polly, "it was probably because the cars were so crowded, he couldn't ride."

FALSE ECONOMY

One day Simmons saw a pin and remembered the old adage, "See a pin, pick it up, and all day long you'll have good luck." He stooped to get the pin; his hat tumbled off and rolled into the gutter; his eyeglass fell on the pavement and broke; his suspenders gave way behind, he burst the buttonhole on the back of his shirt and nearly lost his new false teeth. But he got the pin.

Some people who try economize on their advertising expenditure find it about as profitable as Simmons' lucky (?) pin. They save a few dollars on their monthly bill and damage the business-getting power of their campaign and the same thing is true of your letter heads, your catalogues or circulars. You must remember that your advertising represents your business. Make it clean, up to the minute in style, on a good paper and printed with modern type and it will create a good impression.

Our Printing Department has more equipment and better facilities for doing high class printing than all other Jansville printers combined, and competes successfully on large work against metropolitan printers. You will find the best printing most profitable and that we give most value for your outlay.

Let our representative call and submit sketches and plans for your next work.
